First Prize in Better Housing Contest Is Won in Nevada City

The first prize of $100 in the statewide Better Homes Contest inaugurated by the San Francisco Chronicle sometime ago, has been awarded to Donald T. Strandberg of this city for his remodeling of an old shanty into a modern and pretty cottage at 117 Grove Street.

Strandberg was one of the first to avail himself of the opportunity offered by the Federal guarantee of 20 per cent of bank loans made for home improvement, in this county. The picture of the improvements made on the house appeared some time ago in the Nugget, and appeared again in the San Francisco Chronicle.

The fourth prize of $15 went to another resident of Nevada county, Mrs. Majorie Scanlon Davis, R. F. D. 2, Grass Valley, for improvements on her cottage. The remainder of the awards went principally to people in the Bay Region.

NELS TOBIASSEN PASSES AWAY ON THURSDAY P. M.

Mr. Nels A. Tobiassen, of Nevada City, passed away yesterday afternoon after an illness of several months. Mr. Tobiassen has been in failing health for a long time due largely to old age. At the time of his death he was 79 years old. Mr. Tobiassen was a native of Norway and became a citizen of the United States as soon as it was possible after coming to this country. He had lived in Nevada City and vicinity for 53 years. He was a member of the Odd Fellows lodge for 53 years and acted as Noble Grand in his 50th year. As a young man before coming to this country, he followed the sea and spent 19 years at sea in the days of the old sailing vessels, having visited every important port in the world.

In the early days in this county he was ditch agent for the Old Excelsor Water Company. Later he was engaged in minig and farming until his retirement some years ago.

Mr. Tobiassen leaves five children, nine grand children and one great grand child. The surviving children are Mrs. Ida Magonigal, of Nevada City, Mrs. F. W. Bowman, of Marysville, Carl J. Tobiassen, of Nevada City, Theodore H. Tobiassen, of Nevada City and Andrew N. Tobiassen, of Grass Valley.

The funeral services will take place from the I. O. O. F. Hall in Nevada City on Sunday, November 9, at 2 p. m., with the Odd Fellows lodge conducting the ceremony. Interment will be in Pine Grove cemetery. W. R. Jefford and Son have charge of the arrangements.

METHODIST CHURCH SCENE OF BEAUTIFUL PAGEANT THURS. EVE.

About fifty members from the Methodist churches of Nevada City and Grass Valley gave the pageant "Thanksgiving Through the Ages", in the local church last evening. The play began with early Grecian times through Hebrew, English, Puritan, and modern periods. Among the musicians taking part were: Mrs. Camile Cornish, organist; Miss Ruth Mitchell, piano; Mrs. Esther Nile, flute; Harold George, trumpet; Mrs. Louis Hooper, piano; Mrs. Grace Raymond, harp. Costumes of all the periods were worn by those taking part, the songs were Thanksgiving hymns. Soloists were Miss Donna Blake, Jack Warren, Louis Hooper, of Grass Valley, and Mrs. Katherine Celio, of Nevada City.

BIRTH

BORN—At the Nevada City Sanitarium, December 4, 1934, to Mr. and Mrs. George E. Pease, a daughter, Sandra, weight 8 pounds, 9 ounces. Mrs. Pease is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Moomey.

Mrs. Richard Martin has as a visitor her son, Henry Holland, of Sacramento, who is a former Nevada City resident.

COUNTY FARM TO BE DISCONTINUED

The county board of supervisors at their session Wednesday took definite steps to retire from the public farming business, in other words they will lease the county farm, sell all equipment, and obtain supplies that the farm yielded for the county hospital henceforth from private sources.

The farm was purchased from W. B. Celio in 1907 on the assumption that inmates of the county hospital could be employed to produce vegetables, fruits, and dairy produce for use of the institution. In practice, this theory worked badly and for several years grand juries and auditors employed by the county have found the system faulty.

Bids for the lease of the farm and for a milk and butter supply will be advertised to be submitted by December 20. Sale of farm equipment by Carl J. Tobiassen, present manager of the farm, who will take office as Sheriff, on January 2, was ordered by the supervisors.

FIREMEN HONOR WILLIAM GRACEY

With his departure for a new post with the Forest Service in San Francisco, but a week away, the Nevada City Fire Department, Pennsylvania Engine Co. No. 2, Wednesday night, presented William M. Gracey with a beautiful Masonic ring, in appreciation of his long service with and membership in the fire department.

The presentation was made by Myers Mobley and Mr. Gracey responded feelingly, expressing his regret that intimacy of years must be severed.

For seventeen years Mr. Gracey has been one of the executives of the Tahoe National Forest Service and his exceptional performance of duties here, has won a promotion to the Forest Service headquarters in San Francisco.

Aside from his work in Forest Service Mr. Gracey has always taken a prominent part in Nevada City's civic affairs, at one time serving on the school board. Many friends regret the necessity of his departure, but are glad of the recognition given to his abilities in the Forest Service.

The Fire Department discussed plans for the coming masquerade ball on New Year's Eve and accepted an invitation to attend a meeting of the California Firemen's Association in Auburn, December 16.

Mr. Turner is endeavoring to organize a grange in Nevada county.

OLDER BOYS' TO BE GUESTS IN LOCAL HOMES

Representatives from about 23 Northern California high schools will convene at Nevada City next week end, December 15 and 16. The occasion will be the Annual Northern California Older Boys' Conference, with about a hundred boy leaders and teacher-advisors. The theme of this year's conference will be taken from the song and poem, "The Builder." Delegates from most of the important high schools in Northern California will register at the high school study hall, Saturday, December 15.

As a part of the program, there will be two luncheons furnished by Miss Bartholomew's home economics classes, a banquet given by the Nevada City Epworth League, probably an excursion to one of Nevada county's points of historical or mining interest, and a round table discussion. The expenses of the convention are taken care of by the two dollar registration fee.

Housing is a problem, however, that is going to be solved by placing the boys in individual Nevada City homes for the one night of the conference, December 15. It has always been the custom for the town of the high school host to the conference to give the boys a room and their Sunday breakfast. This graceful hospitality never causes any trouble. The delegates to the conference are chosen on a basis of scholarship, leadership, and character. They are required to be in on the Saturday night of the convention by ten or eleven o'clock. Although a hundred boys and advisors are expected, lodging and breakfast have been found so far for only 45. All those who can and would enjoy giving their hospitality to the boys for one night and morning are requested to notify Mr. Kjorlie, Franklin Tuttle, or Dick Bennett.

Those who have already offered to house one or more of the Older Boys' Saturday night are as follows Judge Raglan Tuttle, R. E. Harris, Clayton Bennett, O. E. Schiffner, H. M. Leete, Leroy Delaney, H. E. Kjorlie, O. McCraney, Jim Brown, Merle Coulter, Mrs. Katherine Celio, Mrs. Mary Warneke, Mervin Doolittle, the New York Hotel, Dick Stevens, A. D. Hughes, Rude's Auto Camp, National Hotel, Mrs. Robert Grant, and Mrs. Elizabeth Davis, and Mrs. C. E. Bosworth.

This is the first convention of this kind Nevada City high has ever sponsored, and from the looks of the preparation, it is going to be a humdinger.

BROWN, REALTOR TO BUILD OFFICE

C. M. Brown, Nevada City realtor, has leased the lot next to Armory Hall from the Nevada City Fire Department, and will build an office building of brick construction, for his headquarters. The building will be 16½x25, and will be an addition to the business district of this city. Mr. Brown has a long term lease on the property.

Woman's Generosity Gives Ski Club Clear Title to 140 Acres

The Nevada City-Grass Valley Ski Club now owns, clear of any incumbrance, 140 acres on the Tahoe Ukiah highway. The deed from Mrs. Louis Simpkins, owner of sixty acres until the deal was made a few days ago, has generously sold her property to the club for $1,200, waving an additional $300 which was due her.

Mrs. Simpkins made the new deal with the Ski Club on November 16, when W. H. Griffith, secretary of the club, went down to her home in Burlingame and interviewed her. On that date $1,500 was due her as final payment on the property. The club had no funds, but when the club house burned there was an insurance policy upon it for $1,200. Mrs. Simpkins had offered to let that amount apply upon the building of a new club house if the club would raise the additional sum needed. In event the club had been able to erect a new club building, it would have meant that it would still have owed $1,500 upon the land and whatever other additional sum the building would have cost.

After discussing the question in all its phases, Mrs. Simpkins finally made her generous offer. A meeting of the board of directors of the club was called and her offer was promptly accepted. The members of the board present, when the resolution was passed authorizing the purchase of the property, were Fred F. Cassidy, R. J. Bennetts, Judge Raglan Tuttle, Ernest Schreiber, A. W. Hoge and George Carter.

To those who have struggled for years to place the Ski Club on a sound financial basis, this transaction is regarded as opening the door to a splendid opportunity. For it is believed that under the second division of the Federal Housing plan it will be possible to borrow money for a long period at a low interest rate and to erect a modest but adequate club house and to take the first steps toward creating on this magnificent property a community playground second to none in California.

In time it is proposed to make the Ski Club, not only a center for winter sports, such as skiing, tobogganing, and possibly skating, but to build up through the years a year around sports and recreational spot where tennis and golf, may be enjoyed.

The slate is clear, the time opportune, and the club can now adopt a long time plan for the development of its beautiful acreage with every prospect that it can be financed for a moderate amount to start with. It is understood that President Miles Coughlin will call a meeting of the club in the near future to hold an election of officers and to discuss a building program.

BELLED BUCK CUTS UP DIDOES WITH FOLKS IN CAMPTONVILLE

CAMPTONVILLE, Dec. 6.—During the open season, hundreds of eager hunters trod the wooded hills in search of deer, but there is still alive one young buck, with sawed-off horns, about two years old, in the prime of life, which Ed Price wishes had been among those bagged, for Tuesday afternoon, while mining on his claim, south of town, like a flash the deer attacked Ed from the rear, knocking him down and cutting his hand with one of the horns.

This same deer paraded the streets of Camptonville Tuesday afternoon, chasing school boys and otherwise causing excitement. He went into the barracks of the Forest Service, under construction, jumped into the bath tub, out again and chased and made the CCC boys, working there, take to the attic or basement. A short time ago this same animal knocked Joe Halkyard down, and became too familiar with other residents.

The animal wears a small bell, and it is said, belongs to a prospector on the North Yuba River. Of all the pet deer, this one takes the prize for being the most famaliar, in fact, too much so, and his familiarity may some day end in the stew pot flavored with garlic and onions.

Game Warden Earl Hiscox, of Nevada City, was in this section Friday on official business. Along with othe business, he was investigating this unruly buck. If the deer returns to town, the warden left orders to capture the animal and he will take him to a zoo or park.

HOIST BURGLARS ARE GIVEN PRISON SENTENCES

Frank Fitzgerald and James Gasque were taken to San Quentin prison Wednesday by Sherrif George R. Carter to begin indeterminate sentences on charges of second degree burglary.

The pair were found guilty of burglarizing the hoist house of the Boreham mine near here last September by a superior court jury, which returned the verdict late Tuesday night after nearly four hours of deliberation. The convicted men waived time for sentencing and were sentenced to San Quentin by Superior Judge Arthur Coats, of Sutter county, sitting for Judge Raglan Tuttle, who is holding court in Los Angeles.

Fitzgerald has been convicted of two previous felonies.

Scientists Seek Their Origin

In the near future, two American scientific expeditions will be on lonely Easter Island in the Pacific ocean, seeking to plumb the mystery which cloaks the building of the great stone faces pictured above, which, perhaps for centuries, have gazed bleakly out over the sea. To seek evidence of an ancient civilization responsible for these weird statues, the G. Allan Hancock Expedition for the Smithsonian Institution and the Templeton Crocker-American Museum of Natural History group have set sail for the islands.

CHRISTMAS TREES FOR FOREST SERVICE

The Tahoe National Forest Service, has cut 180 siver tip firs to be used as Christmas trees by the Forest Service force in San Francisco and the employees of the California Experimental Station. Each year the Tahoe National Forest Service crews cut and ship the trees for the two departments.

Very few trees have been cut for sale by the Forest Service so far this season for the city markets. Large trucks piled high with trees for the Christmas trade, pass through Nevada City every day, but most of them have been cut from private lands.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS COMING

The time to buy Christmas gifts is right now while Christmas givers can obtain the widest selection. Everyone in Nevada county is anticipating a "big" Christmas, that is to say, a Christmas that will be remindful of the old pre-1929 days, when everybody was a gambler and the goose hung extremely high, when the golden era was solid gold with never a hint of gilding.

So far as Nevada county is concerned it is far ahead of 1929 in everything that makes for prosperity. Twice as many men are now employed in the mines as there were in those glorious days before the crash. Wages are higher, rents are higher, housing is scarce, and prices of real estate in some instances are doubled.

If we can shake off the old feeling of depression that creeps up like a fog from the valley, if in Bibical phrase, we can lift our eyes to the hills, and plan sanely for ourselves and for our community, resolving mightily that Christmas and New years of this 1934, shall be a new door opening on a better future, this will be indeed a Yuletide to remember as a holly red marker in community annals.

And so far as the fog of depression is concerned, it is clearing everywhere one looks. Gradually it lifts. Whether it is because of Government spending on a multitude of pump priming projects, or whether it is because the natural process of liquidation, like the fever of a sick person, has run its course, the whole country is on the mend. One thing certain, President Roosevelt, whatever else he has done, has inspired the country, infused it with his great courage, and induced those who think to think more and to plan better. This may, indeed, be his greatest contribution to recovery.

By shaking off fears, by resuming relationship with friends and relatives which the depression, perhaps, smothered for a while, and by new and more helpful orientation psycologically, we can make this the first Merry Christmas AFTER the Depression.

The Call

I see the upland forests
Under an autumn sky,
And here their myriad voices
As the rushing winds sweep by;
But there comes a call to service
From the nation's troubled heart,
And gladly I answer, "Ready;
How may I do my part?"

And wonders that are to be,
All that the past has given
Meet in our dreams of the future,
And whisper to you and to me;
With the sturdy strength of the fathers
And courage to do and dare,
You are building now for the future
And the labor each one must share.

So here in the vivid present
With infinite pride and care
We are building a nobler temple
With portals secure and fair.
And each should bring to the service
More than the builder's art;
With courage and faith and patience
To comfort the nation's heart.

—A. Memmiam Conner.

CO-ORDINATION NECESSARY

Despite well founded hopes for a highly stimulating effect in the construction field, the so-called Better Housing program is not making the progress that its merits deserve. There are various reasons for this partial failure, all of which, viewed from any one of its several sides and from a short-sighted standpoint may seem reasonable. If we undertake to analyze the reasons for its momentary failure, and further consider what the inevitable consequences must be; it seems safe to venture an opinion that a very short-sighted policy is being pursued by a great many of our people.

To consider the subject intelligently, the following basic facts must be indelibly impressed in our minds: The one inflexible principle of the Administration is to promote economic recovery, and for this purpose it has or can secure all necessary power; recovery cannot be effected until there is widespread and continuous employment with its consequent revived purchasing power.

As we know, the NRA, as it was conceived and put into effect, is an excellent plan and deserves more support than it is receiving. The facts are all too evident that better housing is badly needed, that labor and materials are super-generously available and that by co-ordinating these needs and elements we would go far toward promoting better times.

As to the reasons for the failure of the country to take greater advantage of this opportunity to better things, may be cited organized business' charge that the cost of labor is too great and organized labors charge that the cost of materials are too high and that more lenient credit must be extended. When we analyze these reasons we find that from a short-time viewpoint, both have logic. From a broader viewpoint both are wrong, and, unless concessions are made on both sides, and very soon, both will suffer.

It is interesting to consider what the logical sequence of events must be unless these exciting differences are not soon adjusted. First the facts. Government cannot long continue carrying the burden of support a large percetage of the population which does not produce wealth in some form. It has long been known, (and almost universally disregarded) that interest rates should have a definite relation to the average annual increase in the wealth in any nation. In order that a sound economy obtain, the prevailing rates of interest on borrowed money and the average increase in natinal wealth must very nearly approximate each other. In the U. S. interest rates have been much higher than this increase in wealth. This trend of thought is easily discernible in President Roosevelt's repeated statements and actions to reduce prevailing interest rates.

Organized labor, on its side, maintains that a high wage scale, affording high purchasing power on the part of labor, is essential to recovery and a normal prosperity. This is a sound premise. What labor does not see, or appears not to see, is that unless it accepts a temporary lower scale of wages, which is necessary in order that large scale activity be initiated, that more and more it will be regimented in various governmental rolls at such wages as government bureaus may stipulate and without anything like its present bargaining power.

Organized business and capital on their part, maintain that unless it can be guaranteed a precedented return on its investment or a so-called reasonable profit, that it perfers to wait until circumstances force a change; supposedly favorable to them. What business and capital do not care to recognize is that, unless they do their part in helping to better present conditions, and quickly, Government will be obliged to take over their functions.

This trend of thought on the part of the Administration is discernible in statements to the effect that a plan is being shaped up whereby federal funds would be made available to prospective home builders at a flat rate of 3 per cent interest, with amortization spread over a long term of years.

While such a statement may concieveably be for the purpose of clubbing private capital into line; its fulfillment is entirely within reason. In any case, unless we desire that Government take over and regulate all of our activities; it greatly behooves all of us, to in some way arrive at an adjustment of differences and start things moving.

MILLIONS SPENT BY SPORTSMEN

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—The biennial report of the State Fish and Game Commission for the two years ending June 30, 1934, is now off the press and may be obtained from the San Francisco office of the commission free of charge. There is a limited edition of this report.

The report includes a resume of the activities of every bureau of the Division of Fish and Game and for the sportsmen, as well as those interested in fish and game conservation, is replete with interesting data.

The report shows despite the depression, that during the past two years people are taking more interest in fishing and hunting. J. Dale Gentry, president of the Fish and Game Commission, as well as Commissioners I. Zellerbach and Earl B. Gilmore, all engaged in major business, declare this increase in interest and or income is a splendid index of the improvement of economic conditions.

It's pointed out that while the c— of a fishing or hunting license is small, the money spent to go fishing or hunting amounts to a very sizeable sum. During the biennium there were sold 712,868 licenses to hunt and fish.

This great horde of sportsmen spent millions of dollars in their quest for fish and game, research records reveal.

In addition to fish and game activities, the report presents a detailed account of commercial fishery operations along the California coast.

There were landed from California waters in California ports during the biennium 1,005,565,614 pounds of 52 varieties of ocean fish, crustaceans and mollusks. This is 112,599,415 pounds more than was landed in the preceding two years. In addition to California fish there were brought into this state from Mexican waters 134,447,297 pounds of fish. This makes over one billion one hundred million pounds of sea foods handled under jurisdictin of the State Fish and Game Commission.

She appeared in the opening. "Gone?" she whispered.

"Yes, gone—and dead."

"I—saw—you . . . is he—dead?"

"You bet your life," burst out Jim, his breast oppressed.

"Oh, help me out!"

He ran to assist her. She came sliding out, to fall on her knees, clasping Jim with fierce arms. Her head fell against him.

"Get up," he ordered, sharply, trying to lift her. But she was more than a dead weight.

"God bless you! Oh, God bless you!" she cried. The voice was husky, strange, yet carried the richness and contralto melody that had been one of Helen's charms.

"Don't say that!" he exclaimed, aghast.

"Jim, you've saved me," she whispered. Jim's hands plucked at her arms, caught them.

She loosened her hold and raised her head to look up at him. He saw only her eyes, tearless, strained in overwhelming gratitude.

"No—not yet!" he blurted out. "We must hurry out of this."

She arose, still clinging to him. "Forgive me. I am selfish. We can talk some other time. I should have realized you would want to leave here at once. . . . Tell me what to do. I will obey."

Jim stepped back and shook himself.

"You kept me from thinking," he began, ponderingly. "Yes, we must leave here. Put on your riding clothes. Pack this dress you have on—and all you have. Take your time. We're safe for the present. And don't look out. I've got to bury Hays and the men."

"My spirit wouldn't faint at that," she replied. "I saw you kill the wretch—and I could help you bury him."

"I won't need you," replied Jim, constrainedly, and wheeled away. Madly he rushed to and fro, while he searched the dead robbers, to fling their money and valuables in a pile. Then he dragged them to the brink of the wash and toppled them over.

Action had begun to steady Jim, if not compose him. He shoved all the money into his saddlebag. Next he packed every one of his shells. He might be attacked again in that hiding place. Then he selected supplies for two packs and filled them, not forgetting a few utensils.

His next move was to strap blankets and saddles on the two gentlest horses. Those he led back to the cave, where he packed them. After that he had only to saddle Bay and the gray horse Helen had ridden there.

Suddenly he thought of Smoky. If he had been alone, or with another man, even a helpless one, he would have taken time to find that strange and faithful robber and have given him decent burial. But he would not leave the girl.

While he stood there, trying to think what else to do, he remembered a sack of grain that Hays had packed from Star ranch. He found it half full and tied it on the lighter pack.

He hurried back to the girl, calling: "Are you ready?"

"I've been waiting," she said, and came swiftly out. The rider's costume brought out the rounded grace of her form. She had braided her hair. The sombrero he remembered shaded her face.

"Where are your veil and long coat?" asked Jim, seeing her as on that unforgettable day.

"He burned them," she answered in a stifled voice.

"Get into this." And he held his slicker for her. It enveloped her, dragged on the ground.

"We're in for storm. Rainy season due. You must keep dry."

Turning to the gray horse, she mounted.

"Ride close beside me where there's room. Just ahead where there's not," he directed her.

Jim tied the halters of the two pack animals to their packs, and started them off. Then he vaulted upon Bay—the first time for many weeks. The horse pranced, but steadied down under an iron hand and heel.

Helen looked back as one fascinated, but Jim bent stern gaze ahead.

"I would destroy this canyon if that were in my power. Come," he said.

They rode up out of the oval, driving the pack horses ahead. The rain was now falling heavily. On the gravel ridge to the west Jim saw a dead man lying prone.

Soon they entered the wide, shallow wash, in the sand of which Jim espied footprints filling with water. They rode out of the tail of the storm and into a widening of the wash, where it reached proportions of a small valley. Scrub cedar and brush and cactus began to show, and patches of sunflowers on low, sandy knolls. They passed the cove where the riders' horses had been left. Broad and deep was the trail to the south.

"Are you all right?" Jim queried.

"Oh, I did not know I could feel rapture again. Yes, I am."

"You're dizzy, just the same. You sway in the saddle. Ride closer to me, while you can. . . . Give me your hand. Don't talk. But look—look! You might see what I do not see."

They rode at length to a canyon head, down which the hoof tracks turned.

"We came this way by night, but I remember," she said. "Do you dare to follow them?"

"We must not."

"But that is the way to Star ranch!"

"Yes, on the trail of desperate men, and across that Dirty Devil river. These summer rains. It will be in flood. I would not be able to get you through."

"You know best. But just to be free . . . to see my brother, Bernie! It is unbelievable."

Jim Wall looked away across the brakes. Presently he said, "I will try to find a way out of this hole. The country is strange. I'll be lost soon. But somewhere up out of here—we'll find a lovely canyon where there is grass and water. I must not run into cattlemen; robbers are not my only enemies. I don't want to be hanged for—for saving you."

Her Reply Was a Stifled Gasp.

"Hanged! Oh, you frighten me!"

"I didn't want to tell you. It is no sure thing that I can safely elude the rest of Heeseman's outfit, if I try to get out through the brakes. It'd be far safer to hide you a while—south of here, out of the way of riders."

"Take me where you think best," she said tremulously.

"When you get out, you must go home to England."

"I have no home in England. Bernie is my only kin, except very distant relatives who hate the name of Herrick."

"Then go to a country as different from this naked, stony wilderness as day from night. Where it snows in winter, and in spring there are flowers, birds, apple blossoms. . . ."

"No, I shall not leave," she replied positively.

A flash of joy leaped up in Jim at her words, but he had no answer for her. He led on, away from that broad, fresh trail, into an unknown region. And it seemed that this point of severance had an inscrutable parallel in the tumult within his heart.

The sun set in an overshadowed sky and storm threatened all around the horizon. Far north the thunder rolled, and to the south faint mutterings arose. Jim could not hold to a straight course. He wandered where the lay of the land permitted. Rising white and red ground, with the mounds of rock falling, and green swales between, appeared endless and forlorn. He began to look for a place to camp.

At last, as twilight darkened the distant washes and appeared creeping up out of them, Jim came to another little valley where scant grass grew and dead cedars stood up, spectral ghosts of drought, and on the west side a low caverned ridge offered shelter. He led over to this and, dismounting, said they would camp there. Her reply was a stifled gasp, and essaying to get out of her saddle she fell into his arms.

CHAPTER XII

To Jim Wall it seemed a miracle that he did not snatch Helen to his breast. Like a wind-driven prairie fire his blood raced. He set her upright on the ground.

"Can you stand?" he inquired.

She essayed to, and, letting go of him, plainly betrayed her spent condition. Jim helped her into the shallow hollow

FRENCH CORRAL

BY MRS. KATE M. SULLIVAN

FRENCH CORRAL, Dec. 4.—Well, we are having weather cold, but clear, "Jack Frost" paid his first visit to our vicinity Saturday.

The rains have made the country look green and beautiful again.

A large drove of cattle passed through this place yesterday, 500 head. We did not learn to whom they belong.

Friday brought ex-residents and natives to visit old friends. J. B. Mardon of Oroville and granddaughter, Estelle Mardon, his daughter, Mrs. Trixie Wren, of Suisun; his niece, Mrs. Hector Cantner (Nee Nelly Eckman), of Oakland, and Miss Wilson, of San Francisco, The party had come to Oroville to spend Thanksgiving with Mr. Mardon, and thought it would be a great treat to visit the old home town of French Corral, and take a trip along the San Juan Ridge. Mr. Mardon was surprised to see the streets of San Juan thronged with visitors.

Thanksgiving Day brought visitors and many were to spend the day with relatives in other places.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Culver spent Thanksgiving with relatives in Pleasant Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Moulton went to Yuba City to join with other relatives and friends at a dinner party at the home of Mr. Moulton's nephew, Verne Fogarty. A company of twenty persons sat at the table to do justice to the "Great American turkey birds."

Mr. J. H. Haslett and sons, Elmore and Lloyd, and Billy Browning went to Nevada City to share the Thanksgiving dinner with the family of Arnon Browning.

Mrs. G. Esterly, manager of the SERA, made a trip to North San Juan to confere with the unemployed and arrange for work.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Fogarty and son, Clyde, of Marysville, also son Verne and family, of Yuba city, were Sunday visitors at the home of W. E. Moulton.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Dudley, of Nevada City visited Mrs. Dudley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Moulton.

Mr. A. Browning and sons, Harry and David, were Sunday visitors. Harry's friends were glad to see that he was recovering nicely from his late accident, when he was severely scalded on the face and arms by steam. His left arm is still under treatment of his physician.

Our teacher, Miss Theresa O'Connor, returned to her home in Birchville Sunday after being in attendance during the week of Teachers' Institute in Nevada City. She reported a very pleasant session of the Institute.

We were sorry to read in Sunday's Union of the serious accident that befel Mrs. Ada Landsburgh, of Kuna, Idaho, when in falling down stairs both her legs were broken above the knee. Mrs. Landsberg was well known on the San Juan Ridge and was a native of the town of Sweetland and there her childhood and young womanhood days were spent with her parents the late Mr. and Mrs. John Perry. She qualified for school teaching and was for a long while on the staff of Nevada county teachers. She is now in St. Luke's hospital in Boise, Idaho.

CHRISTMAS SEALS FUND FINANCES RESEARCH

Research has added another milestone in the battle against tuberculosis by giving the world a new and more sensitive diagnostic test, it was announced last week by Dr. F. M. Pottenger, a director of the California Tuberculosis Association. Dr. Pottenger said:

"Financed by the sale of Chirstmas Seals, the Research Committee of the National Tuberculosis Association has studied tuberculin, the material used in the diagnostic skin test, and has finally isolated the fraction of the tuberculin responsible for the reaction which is the specific tubercle protein.

"The resultant product, called Purified Protein Derivative or Tuberculin P. P. D., is a grayish white powder, completely soluble in a faintly alkalinized diluent. The strength of this powder is so great that only one fifty thousandth part of a milligram (1-3,250,000 grain) is required as an initial diagnostic dose. Tuberculin has long been used as an aid in diagnosis because as a skin test it produces a reaction in any individual that has been at any time infected with tuberculosis. This new tuberculin contains only that portion of the tuberculin whcih causes the reaction—it is therefore much more sensitive than the old test and produces no other reaction in the individual taking the test than a slight, red mark on the skin at the point where the test is made."

Shirley's Rival

The latest "baby star" to make good in Hollywood is vivacious 3-year-old Juanita "Baby Jane" Quigley, above, whose splendid work in a new production earned her a five-year contract, starting at a $250 weekly salary. A popularity matching that of Shirley Temple is predicted for Jane.

"DESIRABLE" TO BE SHOWN SUNDAY AT NEVADA CITY THEATER

Sharing dramatic honors with Bob Steele, star of the thrill Western, "A Demon For Trouble," which shows tonight at the Nevada Theater. The cast of characters are Gloria Shea, the dainty little lady who fills the role of Lita, Bob's sweetheart; and Don Alvarado, playing the part of Gallindo, the Mexican bandit, both of whom won golden tributes from the newspaper critics for their notable performances.

Saturday night the new mystery and scare thriller, "Return of Terror," will be shown on the Nevada Theater screen. Co-starred will be Lyle Talbot and lovely, chic, Mary Astor.

"Desirable," the dynamic and colorful drama of Broadway's theatrical life and its contact with New York's social set, comes to the Nevada Theater on Sunday, with an all-star cast headed by Jean Muir, Geo. Brent, Verree Teasdale and John Haliday.

PART TIME MEN AT WORK ON HIGHWAY

F. R. Garrison, of the State Division of Highways, who is in charge of the local maintenance yard at Nevada City, has a part time employment crew of twenty men and four trucks working on the Tahoe-Ukiah highway between Nevada City and Grass Valley. The work consists of widening the present highway three feet on each side with a six inch thickness of gravel. This shoulder will be allowed to set this winter and plans are to oil it next summer giving an additional six feet to the present highway.

ANCIENT VIENNA BOYS' CHOIR TO SING IN SACTO.

The Vienna Boys' Choir, which the Sacramento Music Series will present in a Christmas Festival of Music in the Memorial Auditorium, December 23, had its inception in 1498, and is thus almost as old as America.

It was first formed as an attachment to the Imperial chapel, it being found advisable that voices be added to the instrumental music furnished for the service of the holy church, and women being forbidden to participate, the boys were enlisted. It has continued ever since; its headquarters are still in the imperial castle, even though the emperors for whom that building was constructed are no more and Vienna is no longer under imperial rule.

Its traditions are tremendous; Hayden was one of these boys; so was Franz Schubert, and both are honored not only as alumni but then works are rendered by the present generation. Mozzart is still another of their revered past associates, and these boys are considered the best exponents of Mozart's music today. Every year, they sing with the entire Vienna State Opera and the Vienna Philharmonic orchestra.

There are 40 boys in the aggregate in the choir, though 22 only are on this tour; they enter the choir by means of very strenuous competition and when a vacancy occurs, it is always filled in that way. At the last such test, for three vacant places, 300 candidates appeared; finally 26 were picked for a special training course; of these, six were found fit—and as only three might be taken, the neediest trio were picked—all of which shows how very high the organization is regarded in Vienna. The boys stay with the choir till their voices change, then they are put to work at other tasks and studies in the same body, and with it they contniue till they are 18 and ready to go out into the world on their own. Rewards for good deeds done are tickets to concerts and operas; demerits deprive them of attendance at the stateopera, and evoke many tears.

FATHERS, SONS HAVE GAY TIME

Fathers and sons of Nevada City high school held a get-together at the high scool last Monday evening. Tere was entertainment, speeches, eats, and little magazine racks which were put together by the assembled men and boys. To begin with, there was a fine program announced by Mr. Kjorlie: "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here;" "Song of India," and an encore by Rimsky-Korsakov, played by Franklin Tuttle on the saxophone accompanied by Miss Sally Robinson, another number by the German Band, a piano selection by Coach Barron and an encore, and two skits by Tom Rickard and Phillip Joyal, besides an excellent harmonica selection and encore by Kenneth Younkin.

Then there were speeches by Addison Janes, Principal H. E. Kjorlie, and Mr. James Colley on the need of a new gymnasium for the high school.

At this point little magazine racks all cut out and ready to be assembled, were passed out, to be put together and take home to each dad.

Miss Sally Robinson, Mrs. Grant and Mrs. Joyal appeared on the scene with hot coffee, cake and whipped cream. Just before the hungry throng went to eat, they were passed out little numbered slips of paper. These were tickets to a drawing for a chocolate cake. Fabien Joyal drew the winning ticket.

The meeting was declared a success by all. Everyone had a good time, and busy fathers had a chance to get acquainted with their sons.

BOOK CHATS

By Abigail J. Stackpole

It is doubtful whether any other writer has painted a more interesting, informative, or authentic picture of postwar Europe than R. H. Bruce Lockhart in his Retreat From Glory.

Appointed unofficial British representative to the Bolshevek Government, young Lockhart, in the interest of his country, cultivated such political leaders as Lenin, Trosky, Chicherin, and others.

One unfortunate circumstance led to another until Lockhart was accused of complicity in the plot to murder Lenin. After his arrest and re-arrest, and eight months spent under guard in the Kremlin, he was exchanged for Litvinoff, one of the Russian prisoners in England.

Having returned to England, Lockhart was a hero to many, including the King, but certainly not to his wife who learned of his friendship with Moura, a White Russian who befriended him during his months in prison.

Moura, by the way, supported herself and her sons as secretary to Gorki and by translating his books into English.

Lockhart obtained a post at Prague, capitol of the republic of Chechoslovakia. Here, he met such remarkable men as President Masaryk and Dr. Benes, whose friendship stood him in good stead later, while traveling through Central Europe in the interest of an English banking company.

A good "mixer" and linquist, Lockhart, with a wealth of experience in meeting and mingling with all kinds and classes of people, from the natives in Malay to the crowned heads of Europe, is now giving his time to journalism.

It is a safe wager that Lord Beeverbrook, in asking Lockhart to become a member of his very large staff, "had his ear to the ground."

Lockhart has a bold and vigorous style which sweeps the reader along, like the waves of the sea. Here is a sample, taken at random:

"Peace was a slow process of reconstruction, in which there was little outlet for ambition. Chechoslovakia was a small country—an island of prosperity in a sea of chaos. . ."

Our only criticism of this splendid book is to question Lockhart's taste in mentioning Moura, his Russian companion, in the same paragraph in which he speaks of his wife and son.

The publisher is Putnam, N. Y. Price $3.

Mrs. Mary Rossen and daughter. Miss Mary Rossen, of Oakland, both former residents, spent Thanksgiving and the week end in Nevada City.

"Long"-Awaited Honeymoon

Everybody knows that Senator Huey Long, Louisiana's boss man, has been a busy individual, but how busy no one realized until his recent announcement that he and Mrs. Long were leaving for Hot Springs, Ark., on a 21-year-late honeymoon. The couple are shown above at the Arkansas resort.

Time Lost is Money Lost

It costs money to be sick. You see it directly if your pay envelope is short. You lose out on some important work if you live on a farm or if you are one of the few who are not docked for lost time. You can't afford to show up on the job unless you are feeling fit. The boss wants results—not excuses.

ALKA-SELTZER

The New Pain Relieving, Alkalizing, Effervescent Tablet.

It is called Alka-Seltzer because it makes a sparkling alkaline drink, and as it contains an analgesic (Acetyl-Salicylate) it first relieves the pain of everyday ailments and then by restoring the alkaline balance corrects the cause when due to excess acid. Alka-Seltzer is pleasant to take, harmless, non-laxative.

Why don't you try it? Get a drink at your drug store soda fountain for a nickel. Buy a package for home use.
